IT IS ABOUT ALL IN

The Testimony in the Day Murder Trial Econ to Be Concluded.

VERDICT EXPECTED TO-DAY

Defense Finishes Its Case-Strong Evidence Against the Defendant Brought in Rebuttal-The Examinations.

The Day murder case will probably be submitted to the jury to-day and a verdict may be expected before night. The testimony was concluded last evening with the possible exception of one witness whom the state was not sure about calling to the stand yesterday. The case for the defense was finished yesterday after-noon and the state's rebuttal testi-mony was brief though important; in fact, it appeared as if the strongest evidence against the defendant was brought in rebuttal.

Mr. Roe, the court stenographer, was not on hand yesterday morning when the case was called and after waiting a few minutes the court ordered an attachment issued for him. Half an hour later Mr. Roe walked into the court room and glanced at the clock.

"Mr. Roe, we have been waiting for you for half an hour," said the court. "Have you any excuse to offer?"

The stenographer frankly said that he had overslept himself.

"These late morning sleeps are an expensive luxury, Mr. Roe," said the court.

"Yes, they are," was the reply.
"Well, Mr. Clerk," said the court,
"you will enter a fine of $20 against

"Well, Mr. Clerk," said the court, "you will enter a fine of $20 against Mr. Roe."

The trial of the case was then taken up and Dr. L. E. Holmes was called to the stand to testify for the defense as a medical expert. Dr. Holmes had been in the court room during the examination of the other expert witnesses, contrary to the rule of the court, but the state made no objection and he was allowed to tell what he thought about certain things. Mr. Kirk asked him to give his opinion, based on what testimony he had heard, but Mr. Wines objected and Mr. Kirk was compelled to repeat his long hypothetical question to which the witness replied in substance that if conditions were as stated by Mr. Kirk, proper treatment had not been given Lee's injury. A portion of the treatment which he said was improper was in allowing a foreign, irritating substance to remain in the wound and on the brain. On cross-examination Mr. Wines asked the doctor where he had treatment was not proper and was in-sufficient. He said the pus accumulain the brain had not been properly drained, and in answer to another question from Mr. Wines he said he had cases in his time that died under similar conditions because the pus was rot drained. Mr. Wines asked why he did not drain the wound and the doctor said it was none of the attorney's busi-Mr. Wines asked Dr. Holmes to state,

Mr. Wines asked Dr. Holmes to state, from what he knew of the facts, what caused the death of Thomas Lee.
"Paralysis," was the reply.
"Caused by What?" asked Mr.

Wines. "The condition of the pus." "Caused by what?"
"By infection of the wound."

"What was the infection of the

Mr. Wines then asked the doctor if Lee would have lived or died if he did not have medical attendance at all.

"He might have died and he might have lived," was the answer.

This interesting cross-examination as to whether the attending physicians killed Lee or whether he died from the effects of the big hole driven into his head by a blow from a hammer re-calls the examination of one of the other "expert" witnesses last Friday. Mr. Kirk tried to show that the doctors didn't treat Lee properly and Mr. Booth asked the witness.

Booth asked the witness.
"If the man had not been injured, treatment would not have been necessary, is that not so, doctor?"

'And if the man had never been born he never would have died?" was a question Mr. Kirk added.

"Yes, sir," was the expert's answer.
Peter E. Dechan, a furniture man, was the last witness for the defense and before he was called Mr. Kirk stated that he had only discovered the witness a few minutes before. Dee-han said he knew Mrs. Lee, but was not sure that he knew James Williams, the state's principal witness. He had seen both at his place of business, "Haye you ever known Mrs. Lee by any other name since the 12th of Sep-tember?" asked Mr. Kirk.

what name?" The court sustained an objection to the question on the ground that it was immaterial, and that whether Mrs. Lee did or did not go by some other name had nothing to do with the case. The with his was anxious to state what he knew or thought he knew, but the court sustained all objections to the testimony on the ground that it was immaterial and incompetent. Mr. Kirk then wanted to tell what he expected to prove, but the court would not permit him to make the statement before the jury and the jury was taken from the court room, after which Mr. Kirk stated that he expected to show by Deehan that there was an undue interest between Williams and Mrs. Lee in the prosecution of the case and that they showed such an interest as to in-dicate a desire to have Lee where he offered. He said it could only be used for the purpose of impeachment and a proper foundation had not been laid proper foundation had not been laid for that, and even if it had and the facts stated by Kirk were true, the testimony would still be incompetent as it would in no way affect the main question of the case. The court said the testimony was perfectly incompetent and then Mr. Kirk asked leave to recall Williams for the purpose of laying a foundation for impeachment, but the court said it was not a ground for impeachment.

Mr. Kirk then announced the case for the defense closed and Dr. Alvord was called by the state to testify in rebuttal. He explained his methods of treating Lee while under his care at the county hospital and up to the time the county hospital and up to the time Lee's friends took him away and removed the case from Dr. Alvord's hands. He said he had done all that good surgical treatment demanded and declared that some of the things suggested by the "experts" who knew nothing about the case would not have James Williams was recalled to con-James Williams was recalled to contradict the testimony of William Day, the defendant, that the latter never had any trouble with Lee. He said that about a week before the assault Day came to Lee's house and called him to the door and asked Lee what he had been saying against him. Thomas Lee called Williams out and the defendant asked Williams if he had heard George Day say that he, the defendant. fendant asked Williams if he had heard George Day say that he, the defendant, had been intimate with Mrs. Lee. Williams replied that he had heard George Day tell Lee so and that he also said if he were in Lee's place he would kill both of them. The defendant then declared to Lee that he had never known anything wrong about Mrs. Lee and he threatened to smash his face for saying so. Then the three went into the house together and sent for a can of beer.

O. W. Perry, a witness for the de-fense, was called in rebuttal and start-ed to testify regarding some conversation he had with the defendant. Mr. Grice, associate counsel for the defense, objected to the form of the questions asked by Mr. Wines and suggested the proper form. Mr. Wines asked the question in the form suggested and the Mr. Wirk objected and gested and then Mr. Kirk objected and Mr. Wines asked the court to decide which counsel for defense stated the to remain in the wound and on the brain. On cross-examination Mr. Wines asked the doctor where he had heard that there was such an irritating substance, and the doctor replied that his "aurgical common sense" told him ser iterates can be accommon sense to the improper treatment was based on this "surgical common sense" rather than upon the facts related to him by Mr. Kirk. The doctor supposed that certain conditions existed regardless of what the testimony showed and he was inclined to discuss the evidence.

Mr. Wines objected. "We know," he said, "that the doctor knows more than any other professional gentleman, but still we insist that he shall answer questions asked him and refrain from discussing the testimony in this case."

The doctor said that atthough he knew nothing about the treatment or methods pursued by the attending physicians the result showed that the treatment was not proper and was insufficient. He said the pus accumula-rick came into her house and said she was afraid William was going to kill Lee, and would drag John into it. Lillie Perry next testified that she was at Hannah Merrick's house when John Day returned from Meaderville, and asked if there was any blood on his face. Upon being told that there was not, he said he thought they had "sloughed off" old man Lee and that they would have to skip out.

Dr. McGarvin, who assisted in the autopsy on Lee, was recalled and contradicted the opinions and conclusions drawn by the "expert" witnesses. The doctor accounted for the presence of the large quantity of pus in the left lateral ventrical of the brain to the rupture of a blood vessel and related a case that came under his observation where the person had died from concussion of the brain and upon an au-topsy being held it was found that there was not a sign of injury to the scalp, skull or brain covering, but a quantity of pus was found in the brain, caused by the rupture of a blood vessel. The doctor's experience contra-dicted the opinion of the "experts" and his knowledge of the Lee case also opposed their theories.

Dr. C. V. Norcross, who conducted the autopsy, said from what he found it was evident that death had resulted from the wound and not from improper treatment. There was no blood poisoning. At the conclusion of Dr. Norcross' testimony, court adjourned for the day and all witnesses except Lee were excused from further attendance. The state announced that possibly Mrs. Lee would be called this morning, and if not the case would be closed. It will be submitted to the jury this afternoon.
